

Article 7

The human person is sacred and has the right to life. The state has the absolute obligation to respect and protect. Every citizen has the right to free development and fulfillment of his person in the rights of others, public order, and morality.