

Preamble

The freedom and security of each individual under the sole condition that he does not commit any act likely to harm others;