

Article 10

The State recognises the universal and progressive right of every person to social security, for protection against the contingencies determined by law and for the elevation of one's quality life.